

Lynas Rare Earths Analysis

Last updated on: 21. Apr 2026

ISIN: AU000000LYC6

Symbol: LYC

Price: 12.06 €

Market Cap.: 20,51 Bil. €

P/E: 254.69

Country: Australien

Lynas Rare Earths Limited, together with its subsidiaries, engages in the exploration, development, mining, extraction, and processing of rare earth minerals in Australia and Malaysia. The company holds interests in the Mt Weld rare earths mine and concentration plant near Laverton in Western Australia; a rare earths processing facility in Kalgoorlie, Western Australia; and an advanced materials plant in Gebeng, Malaysia. It also offers light rare earths, including lanthanum, cerium, praseodymium, and neodymium; and heavy rare earth, comprising of samarium, europium, gadolinium, terbium, and dysprosium. In addition, the company develops and operates advanced material processing and concentration plants, as well as offers corporate services. The company was formerly known as Lynas Corporation Limited and changed its name to Lynas Corporation Limited in November 2020. Lynas Rare Earths Limited was incorporated in 1983 and is headquartered in Perth, Australia.

Bank Analysts

Analysts currently have a outlook on Lynas Rare Earths. They expect the stock price to in the future.

The average price target is 0 euros. From the analysts' perspective, this suggests a of 0%. Out of 0 analysts who provide recommendations for Lynas Rare Earths, 0 strongly recommend buying the stock and 0 recommend buying it.

It is expected that Lynas Rare Earths will announce of - AUD in the next quarterly report. Earnings per share are expected to be AUD. In the same of the previous year, revenue and earnings were - AUD and AUD per share, respectively.

In this context, many investors pay attention not only to the change from the previous quarter or the same quarter last year but also to the development of recent expectations. For Lynas Rare Earths, it's notable that analysts were 3 months ago. At that time, earnings per share of AUD were expected for the current .

It's worthwhile to know not only the analysts' expectations but also those of the market. These so-called "whisper estimates" often deviate from analyst expectations and provide an indication of whether the market is more optimistic or pessimistic than the analysts.

Looking at a company's shareholder structure can also be helpful for an investment decision. Those who hold large packages also have a greater say. And if the management holds a significant share in their "own" company, there's also a great incentive to perform well.

A high proportion of institutional investors - such as funds or family offices - is also considered by quite a few potential private investors. The idea: If many professionals are betting on the company, then my money is also in good hands here.

In this context, it's also worth observing how institutional investors have behaved in recent months. Currently, Lynas Rare Earths has 983 Mio. shares in circulation.

Imprint

finanzrends.de is a business division of Finanzrends GmbH & Co. KG

Bornheimer Straße 180

53119 Bonn

Phone: +49 228 28627441

Fax: +49 228 92616688

Email: info@finanzrends.de

Web: www.finanzrends.de

Lynas Rare Earths Analysis

Last updated on: 21. Apr 2026

Imprint: www.finanztrends.de/impressum/

Privacy Policy: www.finanztrends.de/datenschutz/

Disclaimer: www.finanztrends.de/disclaimer/

Local Court - Registration Court Bonn, HRA8797

Responsible for own content of Finanztrends GmbH & Co. KG according to § 55 RStV:

Personally liable partner YES Verwaltungsges. mbH headquartered in Bonn, Local Court - Registration Court Bonn, HRB15435

Managing Director: Yannick Esters

Disclaimer

The articles offered on finanztrends.de are for informational purposes only. The articles offered here do not constitute a buy or sell recommendation at any time. They are not to be understood as assurance of price developments of the mentioned financial instruments or as a call to action. The acquisition of securities is risky and involves risks that may result in the total loss of the invested capital. The information published on finanztrends.de does not replace professional investment advice tailored to individual needs. No liability or guarantee is assumed for the timeliness, correctness, appropriateness and completeness of the information provided or for financial losses. finanztrends.de has no influence on the published content and no knowledge of the content and subject matter of all articles prior to publication. The publication of the articles identified by name is the sole responsibility of guest commentators, news agencies, etc. Consequently, regarding the content of the articles, there can be no talk of investment interests of finanztrends.de and/or its employees or organs. The guest commentators, news agencies, etc. do not belong to the editorial staff of finanztrends.de. Their opinions do not reflect the opinions and views of finanztrends.de and its employees. (Detailed Disclaimer)